

Christian Gomez

Vice President, Talent Activation Strategy

Responsibilities

As Vice President of Talent Activation Strategy, Christian Gomez spearheads TMBC's client partnerships, redefining how organizations harness the power of their people to drive their most important business outcomes. On a mission to change the world of work, he works closely with some of the world's most innovative, people-focused organizations to design intelligent strategies that scale the practices of the world's best leaders. He is deeply committed to guiding Talent & HR functions to deliver unprecedented business results through their people.

Experience

Christian began his career in the U.S. military as a Sergeant of Marines, and his vast experiences and roles served as a powerful foundation for corporate business. He spent 11 years working for one of the world's leading Human Capital Management firms, ADP, as Senior Global Business Consultant, advising some of the largest and most respected multinationals in designing their BPO and HRIS strategies.

Christian holds a Master's Degree in Leadership from the W. HuiZenga School of Business at Nova Southeastern University. He has dedicated his academic and professional career to studying the intersection between leadership and business, helping organizations, teams and individual leaders turn talent into performance.

Areas of Expertise

- Strengths-based leadership and its application in business
- HRIS strategy
- Business development strategy
- Managing cultures across geographies
- Emerging markets